City-Wide Religious Survey

On Sunday afternoon, March 20, from one to three o'clock sixty teams of workers, two in a team, will go from house to house throughout the city of Grenada, for the purpose of gathering information concerning the religious status of the citizens. These workers will come from all churches in the city, for it is to be an interdenominational affair. They will gather at the First Baptist Church promptly at one o'clock on the afternoon of the 20th, receive last-minute instructions as to how the census is to be taken, then go afield immediately. If the citizens of Grenada, remain home that afternoon for the two hours mentioned, the work can be finished in that short time. With the help of everybody, each church in this community will reap untold benefit from this survey. It is hoped that all, whether church-members or not, will remain at home to receive these workers.

Rabies Problem Of Much Concern Over The State

A Bill To Control Is Now Before The Mississippi Legislature

Considerable anxiety is expressed by Dr. R. N. Whitfield, Director of Vital Statistics, State Board of Health, over the rabies problem in Mississippi, a bill to control which is now before the Mississippi Legislature.

"Hydrophobia, or rabies, is such a horrible and deadly disease in man," Dr. Whitfield said, "and the opportunities for its contraction so constant that it is highly important for the public to know some of the leading facts connected with this deplorable situation in the hope that it will be controlled, and relegated to the past.

"This disease could be easily controlled by proper legislation, properly enforced," Dr. Whitfield continued. "Mississippi should have a compulsory vaccination law requiring every individual to have his dog vaccinated against hydrophobia once a year. There is every good reason to believe the bill now before the Mississippi Legislature will soon become a law."

During the past year, the State Hygienic Laboratory distributed throughout the state rabies treatments for 3185 persons who had been bitten, or were exposed to infections. This figure represents an increase of more than two and a half times the number of treatments mailed out nine years before. Thousands upon thousands of these treatments have been sent from the State Board of Health to people over Mississippi during the past year.

Pointing out the success with which rabies is controlled in cities all over the United States by annual prophylactic vaccination of all dogs, Dr. Whitfield expressed the hope that Mississippi too will afford its citizens protection from the horrible menace of rabies.

All Newly Elected Trustees Should Meet and Organize

Should Elect Chairman and Secretary; Must Meet In Regular Meetings

(By J. S. Vandiver)

Last Saturday was the regular date for the trustee election in schools having three trustees. It is very important now that these trustees meet and organize as required by law by electing a chairman and a secretary. We wish to insist that trustees of every school perform their duties in a business like way. Every transaction performed by the trustees should be in a regular meeting at the school house.

The attorney general has ruled that in order for the actions of the trustees to be legal they must meet in regular meetings at the school house after notice has been given to each member of the board. Complete records should also be kept of every action of the board.

The education program of the state is one of the biggest businesses in the state and the trustees, as representatives of the people of their district, have a very great responsibility and should practice good business principles in the direction of the activities of the school.

It will soon be time for budgets to be made for the net school year and we want to urge the trustees to be sure that they have adequate insurance on the school property. During the past few months, several school buildings have been destroyed by fire, and in some cases, they have not had sufficient insurance to replace the loss. This has worked a great hardship on the people of the district. This should be avoided in the future by carrying adequate insurance protection.

If the members of the State Department of Education can be of any assistance at any time to the trustees in working out their problems, we shall be very glad to do so.

Our First Baptist Church of Grenada

(By W. E. Boushe)

This article is not written for any special historical value, nor is it at all chronologically written. Just musings and ramblings as they come to me. Some folk lore, some memory.

I write on the Baptist Church because this is the church with which I am best acquainted, being a member myself "though not a very good one," and my people having been members for many generations. I perhaps am a Baptist because they were Baptist before me. Just as perhaps you are a member of some other denomination, just because your people were before you. I am certainly not one of those possessed with ego to claim the Baptist God's special flock. But believe each Christian denomination "provided the heart is right" holds its own special place in God's promise and province, perhaps in each denomination, were Christ to come to earth today there might be something hard to reconcile to His simple doctrine, now for just a brief prologue. The Baptists have a glorious history of which they are justly proud, profane history in giving origin of other denomination, says Baptist origin is lost in the depths of antiquity—"Encyclopedia Britannica." The Baptists themselves claim their origin in Christ, however, that is just as true of any other Christian denomination, for without Christ there would be no Christian churches. The Baptists on account of their early rigidity suffered much tribulation and persecution. Rodger Williams of New England, a great and good man, who for his belief was driven out of Massachusetts into Rhode Island, founded the first historical Baptist Colony in America. The Baptists along with the Methodists and Presbyterians have always been in the advance ground of civilization. Grenada and Grenada county were no exception to the rule. There were no early churches, the early preachers as Missionaries preached at trading posts or wherever they might gather a crowd. The First Baptist Church of Grenada was organized by Rev. William Minter from South Carolina in 1838. Mr. Minter was not only an enthusiastic preacher but prominent business man as well, owning much real estate and many slaves. Nevertheless, he had a fine reputation. A prominent man who devoted much time and influence to the organization of the church, though no member, was Hiram Runnels, the promoter of Tullahoma, the east ward of Grenada, and who afterwards became Governor of the State of Mississippi. He was also prominent in organizing the Baptist Church of Jackson Miss. Others prominent in the organization of our church were Rev. James G. Hall and his fine wife. They were two of 12 original members. Rev. Hall was also the second pastor of the church. He was much beloved by all. He is the pastor who married my father and mother, also was great grandfather to my wife .I am sure both he and his good wife died of yellow fever. But I am digressing. Back to the church, two other members of the original 12 were my own great-grandparents, John and Susan Jones. The church building which the newly organized Baptist occupied was an old log store building which had been in the town of Pittsburg, but then west ward of Grenada. A building used by other denominations as well till acquired by Baptist. This log structure was destroyed by the tornado which razed Grenada in 1845. However it was not then in use by the church. From the very beginning of the 12 members, by leaps and bounds the church grew and at once plans were set on foot to build a more suitable church. After much effort, toil and sacrifice a new church then considered very beautiful, was built at the corner of Line and Margin streets. They were very proud of their new home. It was a white frame structure with square windows on each side. Over the pulpit were these words: "One Lord, One Faith, One Baptism." I am sure the chairs in the Baptist church today as well as communion table are relics of the old mother church. A beautiful chandelier hung from the ceiling in it, there were many oil lamps. The falling of this chandelier afterwards caused the fire which destroyed the church. The above described church was used till the building of the new church in the year of 1888. Among the pastors of the old church who served before the Civil War, I mention those I have heard of that have not escaped my memory besides Mr. Minter and Rev. Hall, were Mr. Webb, professor of the Baptist Female Seminary, Mr. Hayward, "Mr. Hayward was said to have been a very fine man." Then Mr. Granville Martin. Mr. Martin was a soft mannered man, careful of one's feelings. In those old days when one died, at the funeral he was either consigned to Heaven or Hell by the pastor. Mr. Martin preached the funeral of a very wicked young man. My grandfather asked an attendant where he consigned the young man, the answer was , it was the most skillful thing you ever heard, he went around between the bark and tree and never touched either one. The pastor of the Margin Street church, when I first remember, was Rev. E. B. Miller. He held the pastorate longer than any other pastor ever did. He was much loved and his memory is revered in the church today. He holds a very definite and happy place in my memory. His ministry was interlocked with plans and efforts for building a new church, which was built while he was pastor. Nor would it be proper here not to mention Capt. John Powell and his wife, Mrs. Winnie Powell. They were tireless in their efforts to hasten the building of the new church—our present church—a beautiful memorial window is in the front of the church to their memory. Mrs. Powell was a Sunday school teacher and a very wonderful character. She delighted in good works, and helped many poor children each Christmas. But Mr. and Mrs. Powell were not the only ones who sacrificed. Everyone heroicly did their best. My mother contributed her mite, but died just as the church was completed, and though all were happy with the new church, there was sadness in leaving the dear old church on Margin, where so much Baptist history had been made. A farewell sermon was preached by Mr. Miller. The corner stone of the new church was laid June 30, 1888. It was a glorious and wonderful day to me though I was only a small boy, and did not know what it was all about. The Masons took a part in the ceremony. A song sung, was the "Glorious Jubilee," this was just 50 years from the founding of the church with its 12 members. The principle address was made by Rev. J. E. Hall, son of the old-time pastor, other talks were made by Judge Fairfield, Dr. Jim Gage, Col. Williams and my uncle, T. B. Williamson. Rev. H. F. Sproles preached the sermon. He had been pastor of the church, and was then one of the state's celebrated ministers. The sermon that night was preached by Rev. T. J. Cha[illegible] It was both a happy and memorable day.

The dedication services were held in November, 1891, Rev. J. B. Hawthorn, of Atlanta, preaching. Speaking only for myself I would say, the preachers who perhaps have made the most indelible imprint upon our church history of any would be Mr. William Minter, the founder, Mr. E. B. Miller, under whom the new church was built and Rev. W. E. Farr, under whom the church greatly prospered, and who was instrumental in building the Annex. Other prominent preachers to serve were, Rev. Hall, Dr. Sproles, who probably reached higher stauts in demoninational reputation than any other preacher of this church, H. J. Haddick, pastor during the yellow fever, who died at his post of the disease, J. W. Lee, who succeeded Mr. Miller. Mr. Lee was the first pastor of the Central Baptist Church and has many warm friends here. N. W. P. Bacon, who placed the first pipe organ, was a fine preacher. Mr. Hooks was a much loved pastor. It was he who placed the new pipe organ. Rev. C. E. Patch, a fine young man and promising preacher—with many friends.

The present pastor, Mr. Glen Wiley is a young man of much merit and reputation, a good preacher and entrenched in the estimation of his congregation. Nor would it be fitting to pass some of the prominent leaders of the past not already mentioned. Space would not permit them all. Who is there when thinking of the Baptist church of Grenada does not also bring to mind Mr. and Mrs. John Ben Perry, whose descendants today are such moving factors in the church, Mr. G. B. Jones, Dr. J. B. Gage, O. L. Kimbrough, Mrs. Carry Roberts. I hope I may be pardoned if I mention my own aunt, Miss Sue Williamson, who went many many years without missing a service until too feeble to go. There are so many others I would love to mention each by name, but must pass on. If I were called on to mention the supreme moment of the Baptist Church of Grenada it would be the meeting held by Major Wm. Penn, assisted by his singer, Mr. Carnes. I am sure it was the greatest meeting ever held in town, all demoninations taking part. It was the beginning of a campaign to drive out Demon Rum as a legalized vice from our midst. This drive was completed afterwards by Sam Jones, that great Methodist preacher. When Major Penn held his meeting religious enthusiasm reached a point never since equalled in our community. I was only a very small boy. I attended once or twice, my parents never missed. I lived far out in the country but could hear them singing long before they reached home, their voices carrying over the meadow.

There is a rock in a weary land,
Whose shadows fall on burning sand.

That was Major Penn's theme song, he composed it himself. The religious fervor was contagious. The negroes sang down in the fields, "Prodigal Child Come Home." I see my old aunt now as she ran her old Wheeler and Wilson sewing machine, singing numberless as the Sands of the Seashore, more than 50 years ago.

The church has greatly grown from the small beginning—12 members to now 900 members. New faces occupy the old pews. New thoughts and ideas have replaced many of the old, whether all for the better is not for me to say. The good, the old folks did, the sacrifices they made can not all have been in vain. Somewhere in that eternal city not built by hands, their deeds and sacrifices are recorded in the book of life, their hands and prayers are extended to us backing us on and up. As long as water flows and grass grows, may their laurels ever be green in our hearts.

Senator Harrison Holds Conference With Sen. Thomas

Plans Discussed With Reference To Pressing The Education Bill

Washington, D. C. March 5—Senator Harrison today held a conference with Senator Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, Chairman of the Senate committee on Education and who introduced the education bill in the House. Also present were Dr. Floyd V. Reeves, Chairman of the Advisory Committee on Education; Dr. George F. Zook, Vice-Chairman of the Advisory Committee on Education, formerly United States Commisisoner of Education, and who is now President of the American Council on Education; Dr. Paul T. David, Executive Secretary of the Advisory Committee on Education; Willard E. Givens, Executive Secretary of the National Educational Association, and Mr. Howard A. Dawson, Secretary of the Legislative Commission of the National Education Association.

Plans were discussed with reference to pressing the education bill introduced by Senator Harrison in the Senate, and which was reported out at the first session of the 75th Congress.

Following the introduction of the bill and the report of the Committee last session, at the request of the President, it was held up, so that an Advisory Committee appointed by him might study the question of Federal assistance to education. That Advisory Committee was composed of Dr. Floyd Reeves and other distinguished educators and nationally known laymen. They have recently filed a report, which endorses all fundamental obpectives of the Harrison-Fletcher Bill, making the suggestion, however, that the appropriation should be made to the states according to the needs of the states for assistance for educational purposes.

Following the conference, Senator Harrison said:

"We are going to do everything possible to expedite passage of this legislation at this session of the Congress. The report of the Advisory Committee appointed by the President is fine, and I shall advocate such changes in the bill already reported by the Committee to carry out the Committee's recommendations with reference to needs and the reduced annual appropriations."

Gregory Will Be Candidate For Congress of 4th District

Former Senator From Attala Announces Candidacy; Has Fine Record

The Hon. D. L. Gregory, of Kosciusko, former senator from the 22nd senatorial district, was a visitor in the office of The Sentinel recently and authorized his announcement as a candidate for Congress from the Fourth Congressional District.

In 1934, while a state senator, Mr. Gregory pioneered for the little farmers of the hill section of Mississippi in advocating help for them first of all. In 1935, during the extra session, he drafted and engineered through the legislature by a unanimous vote Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 8 which memorialized the Secretary of Agriculture to discontinue historical basis of cotton acreage allotments.

Senator Gregory was a candidate for Representative in 1934, and, although he announced late in the campaign, he made a splendid race. His record as a state solon is an enviable one. Born and reared on a small Attala county farm, he received his education in the Mississippi public schools, later going to Indiana for higher education training. For seventeen years he taught school, later entered business where he gained a marked degree of success as a lumberman. He is, at present, in civil life, one of the most successful lumbermen in this section of the state.

While a member of the state Senate he was appointed to the following important committees: Fees and Salaries, Banks and Banking, Education, Public Health, Federal Relations, and Enrolled Bills. He was instrumental in getting passed the auto and truck tag reduction bill which saved Mississippians thousands of dollars.

Senator Gregory has always stood for economy in government. His every action as a legislator betrayed his interest in the common man and the burdened taxpayers of the state of Mississippi. The only bond issue for which he ever voted as a member of the legislature was that which provided for the completion of the new Insane Hospital.

Senator Gregory is in fine health and possessed of a splendid character and all the attributes which go to the making of an honest, capable statesman. He will make a thorough campaign for Congress throughout the district.

BAND NEWS

The band has recently received some new music. It is the custom of the band to order new music a number of times during the year in order that the public will enjoy their playing. Mr. Dollarhide selects the music and orders it. Among the new music pieces are many good overtures. They are the type that the best bands play. One of the recently received selections, "Entry of the Gladiators," was used by Frank Simmon and his Armco band last year on his radio program. Another new piece is the well-liked "Calif of Bagdad." When Greenwood band gave its concert here, this piece was on the program.

The band has received all the music that is to be used for the coming contest. However, Mr. Dollarhide has not fully made up his mind which piece to use as an optional number. The two pieces he is considering are "Rosamunde" and "Debonnaire." "Rosamunde" is the required number for Class A bands and is usually considered a more difficult piece of music than is required for bands that are the size ond age of our band.

DRAMATIC CLUB

The Dramatic Club held its regular meeting Tuesday, February 22. They read three new plays which they will soon start work on. There were enough parts so that each person had a chance to play a role.

SPECIAL STUDENT MEETING

On Tuesday morning, February 22, a special assembly was called in the study hall for the purpose of finding out how the students felt about organizing a track team. There were not enough students out the day before to justify organizing a team. However, when a vote was taken, it was found that the majority of the students wanted a team. Mr. Rundle asked that more students report for practice because if we wish to win the regional field meet, we shall have to have a good track team. Grenada High is one of the largest schools in the region; therefore, we should have some of the best material in this district. We may have some hidden track stars; so come out and see what you can do.

G. H. S. DIRT

Minnie Frances and "Squire" Vance are on the "Royal Road to Romance."

Wee Willie doesn't seem to be interested in anyone now. What is the matter, "Lord Byron," not sour grapes, is it?

The Long and Short of G. H. S.: Claude Parks and Josephine Payne.

We still think that Jamah should take him around and introduce him.

Frances Thomas seems to be leading Robert Murphy around, but we haven't heard any objections yet.

Better look out, Bill, she's after him and that's no joke!

E. L. was seen holding hands with Anna. If you don't believe me, just ask Charlie Williams, for he knows all about it.

We're glad to have Etoile back with us.

SUB-REGIONAL AND SEMI-FINAL BASKETBALL TOURMENT

In the Duck Hill sub-regional tournament which was just concluded Friday, February 18, the Spring Hill girls basketball team advanced to the semi-final round of the North Central tournament by defeating the strong Alva sextet 33 to 29 in one of the best games ever witnessed. Wood scored 15 points for the winners while Partridge, star forward of the losers, accounted for 19 points.

The Cascilla boys barely defeated the strong Payne quintet by a score of 19 to 17 at the end of the regular time, and in an additional period Trusty sank a basket.

The Spring Hill boys defeated the Grenada five by a 40 to 17 tally. Woods led the victors in points with 14, while Warner tallied 7 for Grenada.

The Spring Hill and Alva girls and the Spring Hill and Cascilla boys entered the semi-finals of the North Central sub-regional tourney held at Grenada February 22.

In this semi-final tournament one of the best games ever seen in Grenada was witnessed between the Spring Hill and Cascilla girls. At the end of the regular game the score was tied 26 to 26. A three minute extra period was given and the score was still tied. Because they were still even it was decided that the first team to score would be winner. Spring Hill made the first point. Both Spring Hill and Cascilla will go to the finals to be played at Water Valley. Players for Spring Hill included: J. Cooper, Stewart, Woods, Aldy, Cooper, Webb and Marter.

The Bruce boys' quintet defeatde Cascilla by a score of 25 to 16. All the first and second place boys and girls teams will go to Water Valley for the final tournament.

LIQUID AIR DEMONSTRATION

On Wednesday afternoon, February 23 a very interesting and educational program was witnessed by students from the sixth to twelfth grades of Granada schools. Mr. Elliott James, a scientist, gave an illustrated lecture on liquid air. Although Mr. James gave this demonstration at Grenada four years ago, very few of those who saw him remembered much about it. There were a few visitors from outside of school who attended.

Mr. James told the students that the temperature of liquid air is 312° F. and explained that it remains at this temperature because it is boiling.

He performed several experiments to illustrate how cold 312° F. really is. First he placed this liquid air in a kettle and placed this kettle on a block of ice. The liquid immediately began to boil off just as water does when heated. This shows that the ice is so much hotter than liquid air that this air boils. He froze a strong piece of cloth so that it was so brittle it broke very easily. Next he took an ordinary rubber ball and froze it in the liquid. Then when the ball was thrown to the floor it burst as if it were a light bulb.

He took some mercury and placed it in a mold and inserted a handle, then poured liquid air around this. In a few minutes this mercury was frozen hard enough to nail with. He performed several other experiments to show the extreme coldness of liquid air such as freezing a lead bell so that it rang as if iron; made a spring of lead as elastic as a steel spring; froze kerosene into a kerosene candle; and performed many other experiments.

He explained that this liquid may be handled if it is handled quickly, He said that liquid air is made by compressing and expanding gasous air.

He demonstrated the power of liquid air by running a regular steam engine. He stated that a few automobiles had been made to run by liquid air but this was very impractical because liquid air cost $6.00 per gallon.

The only practical value of liquid air is to use it to obtain other gases of the air, such as oxygen, xeon, and others.

The students were required to pay only ten cents for this entertainment which was well worth a price much higher. This program was very enjoyable, interesting, and educational.

WHAT THE SENIORS ARE LOOKING FORWARD TO

Fifty two boys and girls will set sail on Life's sea at the close of this semester. They will be leaving this dear old high school never to return again. In a way the thought is a sad one. They are sorry to leave this place where they have had so many good times. They hate to say good-bye to the faculty who have helped them over many a rough spot and lent a guiding hand to those who wandered slightly off the beaten path. But they are eager—these young people—to discover what's just around the corner—what the future holds for them. They believe in their motto, "The past forever gone; the future still our own," and they are setting out to see just what the future does hold for them.

Some of these boys and girls will seek to obtain higher education at colleges; others will try to find work to do. Whatever these fifty-two Seniors do, we are wishing them good luck and "bon voyage." Seniors remember your motto. "The past forever gone; the you don't succeed, try,try, again future still our own," "if at first you don't succeed, try, try, again."

MUSIC CLUB MEETS

The Junior McDowell music club held its monthly meeting in the home of Mary Douglas Honeycutt on Monday, February 21st, at 7:30. The meeting was called to order by Helen Horton, president. After the formalities and business were over, the program was turned over to Clyde Horn, program leader. The subject of the program was musical instruments. Thelma Thompson had charge of the music. The musical selections rendered were by Mary Douglas Honeycutt, Walter Giffee, and Sue Vandiver. After the program was over, Miss Black started a game in which each member was given a list of names of musicians to be pronounced. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

Job Insurance

What It Means to You

By LEON L. WHEELESS, Executive Director
Mississippi Unemployment Compensation Commission

The Mississippi Unemployment Compensation Commission will begin mailing checks late in April, 1938, to thousands of normally employed persons who have lost their jobs. These weekly insurance payments, drawn on the Commission's $3,000,000 reserve fund, will remove many of the hardships of unemployment for thousands of Mississippi's citizens and will be a support to general business conditions by helping to sustain the purchasing power of the state.

This is the first of six short articles intended to explain the main outlines of unemployment insurance and to assist you in determining whether you are eligible to receive these weekly checks. The six articles, presented in simple question and answer form, will take up the following subjects in order: (1) Who Are the Covered Employers? (2) Who Is Eligible for Benefit Payments? (3) How Can You Collect Benefits? (4) How Much Will Your Benefit Amount Be? (5) How Long Will Your Benefit Payments Last? (6) How Is Unemployment Insurance Made Possible?

Here are the main facts about covered employers:

Question: Who are the covered employers?

Answer: The businesses which pay contributions to the Unemployment Compensation Commission.

Q: What does this mean to workers?

A: When a person loses his job, his wage record with covered employers determines whether he is eligible for benefit checks, how much the checks will be, and how long they may last.

Q: How many employers are covered in Mississippi?

A: More than 3100.

Q: How many employees do they have?

A: Approximately 150,000.

A: The Commission furnishes covered employers with a red-bordered poster, which they are asked to display on their premises as an indication to their workers that they are insured.

Q: What employers are required by the law to be covered?

A: Those who employ as many as eight persons in at least 20 weeks of the year. The following kinds of employment, however, are excluded: agricultural labor; domestic service; services by officers and crews of vessels; services for one's child or spouse, or by a minor for his parents; service for the federal, state, or local government; and services for certain non-profit charitable institutions. These Signs May Mean WORMS!

Mothers and doctors are often puzzled by signs of Round or Stomach Worms—first, because these Worms are hard to detect—second, because the signs may be mistaken for Simple Anemia, Nervous Stomach, Excitability, etc.

This "Forgotten Menace" of Grandma's day still troubles both city and country children of all ages, because the infection is usually caught from flies, dogs, uncooked vegetables, fruit, water, etc.

To make sure, try Jayne's Vermifuge at once and watch the child's genius closely for worms. Pleasant, safe, inexpensive. 67 million bottles sold. Requires no dieting or starving.

Why Continue The Farm Program

(By F. J. Hurst)

There is great need for full participation in the farm program which has been broadened and strengthened under provisions of the 1938 AAA farm act. The program will be most effective and helpful when all farmers cooperate and share in its benefits.

Farmers need to do all they can to stop the irreparable losses of soil fertility resulting from the ravages of uncontrolled erosion. Specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture tell us that 400 million tons of soil material are washed annually into the Gulf of Mexico by the Mississipip River and that water and wind erosion together each year remove beyond use 3 billion tons of soil.

They find that 100 million acres of once fertile farm land have been essentially destroyed for profitable farming; that another 125 million essentially destroyed for profitable farming; that another 125 million acres are threatened and eventually will be destroyed unless erosion is stopped.

U. S. Department of Agriculture specialists estimate that the present annual money loss to land owners and to the nation is not less than 400 million dollars annually and that soil losses already aggregate 10 billion dollars.

Under the farm program farmers can earn payments for diverting land from soil-depleting crops to soil-improving crops and for carrying out soil-building practices.

The new farm program will help farmers to meet the need for larger production of food and feed for farm use. The last Census reported that there were 106,000 farms in Mississippi that had no milk cows; 92,000 that had no hogs; and 48,000 without any chickens. On many other farms the production of milk and butter, meat and lard, chickens and eggs, and of other food products, was not sufficient to fully meet farm family needs, to say nothing about local market requirements.

The new farm program will give farmers more land and more time for the productoin of food and feed crops for home use.

The 1938 farm program ill help farmers to meet the need for adjusting the supply of cotton downward. The present record world supply of cotton has depressed cotton prices. Another big cotton crop in 1938 likely would send cotton prices still lower.

Normal crops of cotton have always brought farmers more money than big crops. In addition, the smaller crop will be less expensive to grow and harvest.

The program will enable farmers to raise more of their own workstock. During past years, farmers of the state have paid out large sums of money for mules. Under the provisions of the Agricultural Conservation Program Mississippi farmers have already made much progress in raising needed workstock. They can continue this enterprise on a broader scale under the new program.

Full participation by Mississippi farmers in the farm program will help check erosion losses, improve soil fertility, increase crop yields, reduce production costs, provide more of the family living, stabilize and improve farm income.

Improved, Contour-Furrowed Pastures

Improved, contour-furrowed pastures in the CCC camp area near Senatobia held all the water that fell on them during a rainfall of three inches in three hours, according to A. P. Carroll, Camp Agronomist of the Soil Conservation Camp.

Eighteen farmers who have started permanent pasture improvement in the area in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service and the Mississippi Extension Service have completed 500 acres of this work, Carroll said. The work has already been completed on farms of J. E. Poag, A. T. Callocitt, S. W. Daughterty, and J. F. Watson.

Treatment for permanent pasture improvement includes terracing part of the pasture and contour ridging of the remainder. Basic slag is applied at the rate of 500 to 600 pounds per acre. The land is prepared with a gang or sulky disc.

Between terraces and contour ridges the land is contour bedded with a middle buster in five-foot rows, after which it is disked with the front part of a tractor disc or mule disc, placing the two center discs in the buster furrow and throwing the earth to the center of the bed to make it easy to mow and give more water-holding capacity.

After the first rain when the ground is settled it is seeded to a mixture of 4 pounds each of white clover, hop clover, and dallis grass per acre. In March it will be seeded to 20 pounds of lespedeza seed and 3 pounds of western-grown Bermuda grass seed per acre. The farmers furnish the labor, fertilizer and seed and with the help of County Agent A. E. Terry, workers of the Soil Conservation Service supervise the work.

A METHOD OF REPORT MAKING USED BY ONE OF THE NEGRO 4-H CLUBS

Madam Chairman, Members and Home Demonstration Agent: I beg to make my report, which is as follows: I have set out three trees, one holly, one red berry, and one oak for shade and two running rose bushes. I have white-washed my toilet, cleaned the poultry house and put in new nests. I have rearranged the furniture in my room and repainted some of it. I have made two pairs of pillow cases for my bed and two pairs of curtains for my room. I also made four pairs of curtains for the kitchen. I canned eight quarts of sausage, set out two rows of cabbage, and a bed of onions. I haven't made my reading lamp yet, but I have begun to gather material to make it. I have also made two dresses for myself and one for my baby sister.

Yours for the 4-H Club,

Secretary of State Walker Wood, State Treasurer Newton James, and Assistant Attorney General J. A. Lauderdale returned Thursday from Chicago, where they had spent the first of the week, signing, sealing and making the final delivery of the $33,688,000 worth of highway bonds, noted in our last week's "Capitol Activities,' and which Governor Hugh White signed on Friday and Saturday of last week.

The matter of the secretary of state and treasurer signing this large issue of bonds in Chicago was one of expediency. It being impracticable for the Governor to leave Jackson during the heart of a legislative session, the bonds were sent to Jackson for his signature last week, and by the aid of asignature machine,, authorised for his use and that of the Secretary of State, Auditor and Treasurer, he signed these bonds on Friday and Saturday. The insurance regulations prohibit the express company from handling a shipment of more than $5,000,000 on any one train, and thus it would have required at least seven trains to have transported these bonds to Chicago for delivery.

Therefore, it expedited the delivery, to have the non-negotiable bonds sent to Chicago, and for Messrs. Wood and James to go to Chicago where by the use of similar signature machines they both signed the large issue of bonds on Monday and Tuesday of this week, and delivered the completed bonds on Wednesday. This method and the signature machines made it possible for the entire issue of nearly $34,000,000 to be signed by three different state officials, sealed and delivered, all within a space of four business days.

The State Tax Commission states that there is considerable misunderstanding throughout the State with reference to the income tax status this year. Bills have been introduced in the House proposing to increase the exemption for dependents and extend the statutes of limitation as applied to income taxes, and to increase the tax rates on certain incomes, etc.

The Tax Commission, however, states that if either of these bills should pass, they would in no wise affect the status of income tax returns and payments this year, and that all citizens subject to the payment of income taxes for last year, will make out their reports and payments as hitherto provided by law, regardless of any provisions contained in either of these proposed laws. The returns made out this year, are for 1937 incomes and should any new law be passed at this session, it would apply to incomes of 1938 and could not be used until next year in making out returns for the present year. The Tax Commisison further assures the public that their employees will assist any citizen who desires information and aid in making out their income tax receipts.

The daily report of Chairman Hon. Alf Stone of the Tax Commission, at the close of business on March 1st, shows that for the period of January 1, 1938 to March 1, there was a total of about $13,000 increase in the sales tax collections, over the same period of 1937. Income taxes and tobacco taxes brought in larger increases in the past two months, over last year, than any other two revenue agencies. The increase for income taxes was $38,000 and the tobacco tax $34,000.

Governor Hugh White has issued a proclamation designating the week of March 20-26 as National Wild Life Restoration Week and calling on Mississippians to participate in its observance.

Director Leon Wheeless, of the Mississippi Unemployment Commission, states that in April several thousand checks will be mailed out to those of the 150,000 insured workers in Mississippi who are jobless and entitled to benefits under the Unemployment Compensation Act.

The Mississippi Legislature of 1938 reconvened on Monday, after a week-end recess, and they have been pounding away on the daily legislative calendars steadily all week. Up to yesterday, there had been 147 bills signed by the Governor, comprising 116 House Bills and 31 Senate Bills. Quite a large number of these, however, are bills of a local and private nature—that is—affecting counties, districts, municipalities or individuals.

Among the more important and interesting introductions of Senate and House Bills during the last few days are the following:

S. B. 423, would authorize the Board of Supervisors of counties in Mississippi of over ten thousand ($10,000) population and having three or more banks, to select one of the banks of said county as a depository for public funds and to authorize said depository to divide said public funds with the other bank, or banks of said county and take bond or security from said banks for the faithful accounting of said funds so divided.

S. B. 427, seeks to amend Section 651 of the Code of 1930 so as to provide for the arrest of a sheriff in counties where there is no coroner.

S. B. 428 is an Act to amend Section 16 of the Code of 1930, so as to disallow an appeal from judgment of conviction in any case where the defendant enters a plea of guilty.

S. B. 448 is an Act to provide for the physical examination of persons employed in the handling of foods in hotels, cafes, restaurants, lunch counters, ice cream parlors, cafeteriaes, meat markets, grocery stores, dairies; and providing penalties for failure to comply with the Act.

S. B. 449 is an Act providing for the purchase or erection, construction and maintenance of a War Memorial Building to be located in the City of Jackson, dedicated to the Veterans of all Wars and providing for the creation of a War Veterans Commission and prescribing the powers and duties thereof.

S. B. 434 would amend certain Sections of the Mississippi Code of 1930, and provide for the election of Highway Commissioners, and for employment of a Chief Engineer for the State Highway Department, and for other purposes.

S. B. 435 would repeal Chapter 292, Senate Bill No. 24, of the Laws of 1932, and re-enact Sections 6288, to 6301 inclusive of the Code of 1930 so as to make absentee or absent voting legal as was provided in the foregoing numbered sections.

S. B. 414 would provide for the maintenance of full-time County Health Departments, and providing that County Board of Supervisors and municipal governing bodies may make provision therefor.

H. B. 786 would provide for a supplemental school levy in certain cases where a special consolidated school district embraces all the area of a county outside separate districts.

H. B. 787 is an Act to protect persons and property on the highways of this state, and to better regulate the driving of automobiles on the public highways of this State.

H. B. 814 seeks to provide an appropriation for the purpose of providing education in state educational institutions for the children of soldiers, sailors and marines who were killed in action or died during the World War.

A proposed act to encourage timber interests, is that of H. B. 818 that would eliminate from state and county taxes all timber less than 12 inches in diameter at a height of 4½ feet above the ground.

Navy News and Facts

Lieutenant - Commander, H. F. McGee, Officer-in-Charge of recruiting for Mississippi and Louisiana, will inspect the local Navy Recruiting Station next week.

Naval Program To Give 77,000 Work

The United States new warship building program, tentative statistics show, will provide work for the better part of the next fiscal year for 77,000 or more men.

Ship Propulsion

The United States Navy is a pioneer in the development of ship propulsion methods. Naval ships were the first to be equipped with deisel engines, oil burning installation, geared turbines and electric drive. United States vessels were also first to be equipped with electric lights.

The First Navy Yard

The first navy yard that was acquired after the establishment of the Navy Department, April 30, 1798, was the Portsmouth Navy Yard, Portsmouth, New Hampshire. The property embraced 58.18 acres and had been in use as a shipbuilding yard. The price was $5,500.

Navy's Fuel Supply

To insure an adequate supply for our naval vessels in future years when our present supplies may be exhausted, four petroleum reserves on public lands have been set aside for the exclusive use and benefit of the U. S. Navy. Two of these are located in Kern County, California, one near Casper, Wyoming, and the fourth in the vicinity of Point Barrow, Alaska.

(Week Ending March 5, 1938)
(By Congressman A. L. Ford)

For several months there has been a terrific uproar in industry over Federal Taxes known as "undistributed profits" taxes and "capital gains" taxes. It was so strongly urged that these taxes are injurious to industry that the Congress has decided to try to do something about them. A great part of the week was spent in the House in consideration of proposed changes. A new tax bill will probably be passed next week.

The Committee on Naval Affairs of the House has reported the $1,118,546,000 Naval Bill. This will be taken up the latter part of next week. When passed, this Bill will call for 3 super-dreadnapghts, 2 aircraft carriers, 9 cruisers, 23 destroyers, 9 submarines and 950 airplanes. When this building is accomplished the American Navy will be the largest in the world.

There is an active war going on within the Tennessee Valley Authority. The Authority in run by a board of directors. The chairman of the board is openly fighting the two other members, and they are fighting the chairman. Senators King and Bridges this week offered Resolutions to investigate the TVA on 23 charges.

Franklin D. Roosevelt began his sixth year as President of the United States this week, and the Senate began hot debate on a bill which would give the President great powers in the reorganization of the Government. As presented, this proposed legislation effects the general accounting office, the Civil Service Commission and other agencies of the government.

Senators Bailey and King announced to the Senate that some government agencies had told them that persons endorsed by them would not be given positions because the Senators "had not been voting right."

All Federal grants to the State of Oklahoma for old age pensions were cut off this week by the Social Security board. An audit showed that $685,000 in old age pensions had been paid out in Oklahoma not in compliance with the Social Security Law.

This week the House passed the Interior Department Appropriation Bill. This Bill contains $1,500,000 for the Natchez Trace Parkway.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By Ray Walter JOHNSON and PIERCE

Wasrington, D. C. March 9—The young liberal Republicans are none too happy over the recent pronouncements of Dr. Glenn Frank, former University of Wisconsin president and now chairman of the "Republican Committee on Program." His call for "an audit of the New Deal" and a determining of "what the rank and file" of Americans think by "taking soundings state by state" savors too much of the college lecture room if not of a certified public accountant's office.

Members of the G. O. P. Progressive point out bitterly that you don't need a psychologist to tell you why more people like a movie than a lecture on economics—its enough to know which they prefer. And the Progressives hint that it's high time to use some old fashioned political common sense in grooming a leader—and a platform—for 1940 who will have a chance to lure the voters away from the successor of F. D. R.

If they are accused of being a little callous about the feelings of the old guard Republicans they reply, with considerable truth, then the G. O. P. candidate will get that vote anyway and urge a program which will bring back into the fold as many of the reserters of 1936 as is possible without actually duplicating the New Deal platform.

Since there are open predictions that the Republicans will split in 1940 and it is a foregone conclusion that the Democrats will do so, whether this kaleidoscopic whirl will result in four parties or three or two is anybody's guess. The guess of the best informed Washingtonians is a continuation of the two party system with the right wingers of all parties under the Republican standard and the left wingers masquerading as Democrats.

The only obstacle to this outcome is the remote possibility that the old line Democrats will control the convention of 1940 and distate the platform—in which case a third party is a certainty. Much of the strength of this possible third party will derive from labor. The strength of labor will be tested by the elections this year.

Unfortunately this year's results promise to be far from an accurate forecast of party strength. The Democrats are squabbling among themselves as the party strongly in power has always done in the century and a half of our history. Many candidates this year are drawn from the ranks of office holders who were defeated—some as long ago as 1930.

In Alabama, Tom-Tom Helflin, who lost a race for the Senate earlier this year will try for the House. A dozen other veterans show an eagerness to return to office. If they can win, it will show a definite trend toward a conservative victory in 1940. If they lose it may prove the contrary—or simply that the time for a swing back has not yet come.

CCC To Celebrate Fifth Anniversary

Jackson, Miss., March 9—Mississippi CCC camps will celebrate their fifth anniversary with an "open house" program during the week of April 5, in conjunction with a national observance, Fred B. Merrill, State Forester, announced.

Reforestation work, protection and planting of forest areas, and development of recreational resources will be shown the public by CCC workers during the anniversary week.

There are at present 31 camps in operation in the state, the majority devoted to conservation work, soil erosion control, national forests and private forest areas.

Camps on national forest lands were concerned with two major project; replanting of forest lands which have been sadly depleted by excessive cutting and second, the protection of new plantings and existing timber stands against danger of further burning by forest fires.

Costruction and development of the W. W. Ashe forest tree nursery on the DeSoto National Forest, operated by the U. S. Forest Service, was completed by the national forest camps. There were 25,000,000 trees planted in the state's forest last year, coming from this huge nursery.

CCC workers also aided in fire fighting activities, both on private areas under federal-state-owner arrangement, and state forests.

Camps devoted to soil erosion control projects operated under the technical supervision of the U. S. Conservation Service have demonstrated improved land-use, terraced lands, and accomplished leveling of large gully banks.

During 1937, the state CCC camps planted 25,417,000 forest trees, they spent 15,675 man days fighting fires, constructed 103 forest and park structures, built 44,738 check dams, and planted 7,724,130 trees in soil erosion control work.

"Veterans Of Future Wars"

Kansas City, Mo., March 9—In contrast to the hint of satire and horseplay which brought notoriety some time ago to Princeton University's "Veterans of Future Wars," college students of 1938 are joining with the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S. in a nationwide campaign to keep America out of war.

With the approval of President Henry N. MacCracken of Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. 1,200 Vassar students will sign the V. F. W. petition which calls upon Congress and the President "to adopt and apply policies designed to keep America out of war, sponsored by a national defense program adequate to preserve and protect our country and its people."

The support of college students was enthusiastically endorsed and welcomed in a statement issued by Commander-in-Chief Scott P. Squyres, who declared, "We know from personal experience the suffering and sacrifices the young men and women of today will be forced to undergo if America becomes involved in another war."

"The young men and women who are in college and universities today are the ones who will have to bear the burden of actual warfare, fill the trenches, man the battleships, and pay the taxes of increasing public debt," said Squyres.

"The support of college students for this effort to impress Congress with the people's wishes for a national defense program that will help keep America out of war is already nationwide in scope," the V. F. W. leader announced.

Petitions have already been distributed to student bodies at the University of Illinois, where the petitions are being circulated under the sponsorship of the National Society of Scabbard and Blade; the University of New Hampshire, Durham; the University of Nevada, Hardin-Simmons College, Abilene, Texas; Kent State University, Kent, Ohio; Marion College, Marion, Ohio; Ouachita College, Arkadelphia, Ark.; Alma College, Alma, Mich., Lawrence College, Appleton, Wis.; Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas; Bohany College, Lindberg, Kans.; Beloit College, Beloit, Wis. Capital University, Columbus, Ohio; Drury College, Springfield, Mo.; University of Dubuque, Debuque, Iowa; Rockhurst College, Kansas City, Mo.; Utah State Agricultural College, Logan, Utah, and Yankton College, Yankton, S. D.

Nearly 200,000 of the "Keep America Out of War" petitions, each with space for the signature of 70 American citizens, are being circulated in every state by approximately 3,700 local posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States and more than 2,000 units of its Ladies' Auxiliary.

These groups also have the cooperation of numerous patriotic and historical societies, civic organization, fraternal orders, women's clubs, churches and other bodies, Squyres said.

OFFICIAL ORGAN OF GRENADA COUNTY AND CITY OF GRENADA

THE T. V. A. PROPOSITION.

In an editorial of July 8, last, we had this to say: "While we do not concede that the power company is unfair to the public, WE ARE FOR BRINGING TVA TO GRENADA AS LONG AS THE GOVERNMENT CONTINUES ITS PRESENT POWER PROGRAM."

And this is the attitude of every community in the United States in regard to government spending of taxpayer's money, PWA, WPA, RFC and other alphabetical governmental organizations. As long as it is hidden taxes, O. K., but let us know we are paying the taxes and we are "agin it".

Well, the way we see it, we are paying hidden taxes when we are supplied with TVA current. Of course, the way "the thing lies now" the amount of hidden taxes we are paying are less than the difference that we will pay in the cost of electricity supplied by TVA and the power companies, but do the people of the southeastern states think for one moment that the people of other sections of the country are going to sit idly by and allow us to derive direct benefits from governmental functions at their expense. We don't think so. TVA can supply electricity to Grenada and other communities cheaper than the power companies. There is no question about that. But it must be taken into account that TVA is not crucified with taxes by the Federal Government, or the states in which they operate. The way we see the thing is the policy of the government supplying electricity in the Tennessee Valley and adjacent territory is just the beginning. It is going to be an endless chain. As new links are added to the chain increased taxes will follow. When the chain is completed, when government power houses cover the length and bredth of the land, we here in Grenada will be paying just about the same for electricity as we now pay, but we will be paying in hidden taxes. You can't get something for nothing.

The Mississippi Power & Light Company paid $10,512.25 in taxes, on last year's assessment, to Grenada and Grenada County. Besides that they paid the state sales tax on their gross income. If TVA comes to Grenada the county will get no taxes from them and the city will get about $3,000 annually. With the county unable to meet its obligations when they fall due we are just wondering what it is going to do when approximately $6,500.00 is cut from the tax receipts.

But if it comes down to the fact that we will have TVA here in Grenada, the power company should not be left holding the bag. The city should buy the power company's property and pay them a fair price for it. In 1935 TVA placed a value of $856,000 on the property of the Mississippi Power Company in nine counties in northeast Mississippi and bought it at that figure. It was a forced sale, a case of the power company taking something or nothing. The State Tax Commission has some very capable engineers and they had valued this property at $1,035,271 and assessed them on $638,993, or a ratio of assessed to value of 62%. If the price paid by TVA for this property represented its true value then the ratio of assessed to value was 75%.

In 1925 Grenada sold its power properties to the Mississippi Power & Light Company .Prior to that time we had such an unattractive rate that no one could afford to use an electric range in the home.

The Sentinel was forced to use a gasoline burner, which was very unreliable, on the linotype machine because the rate per killowat hour for electricity would not permit us to install an electric pot. Today we use an electric pot and there are around 150 electric ranges and 200 electric refrigerators in the homes of Grenada.

The people of Grenada evidently wanted the power company here or else they would not have let them come in. They were granted a 25 year franchise and in all fairness the people should see that their investment is protected. If TVA comes in, buy their property and pay them what it is worth for it.

FOR EFFICIENCY OR—

The American people, through the constitution, have specifically given to congress the control over expenditures of federal money. They aren't willing for it to just be spent by anybody. And if the people don't like the way it is being spent, then every two years they have a chance to kick out of office a third of the senators and all of the representatives.

Congress has guarded that responsibility very carefully. It has first passed bills saying that money shall be spent for the authorized purposes.

Now, however, the administration reorganization bill has placed back in the hopper and is about to be brought up for debate. If it passes—on the plea of its supporters for government efficiency—the office of the comptroller general will be abolished. Instead of letting the comptroller general say whether the money is being properly spent before it is spent, the bill would establish a so-called "post audit" system. In other words, it would let a minor branch of the treasury determine after the money had been spent, whether it was properly spent.

That is not unlike locking the stable after the horse has been stolen.

IN WASHINGTON

(By Miss Gray Carpenter)

Crocuses are blooming on the White House lawn . . . There is some pussy-willow budding in a yard I pass on my way to the bus . . . Speaking of buses—a good way to see all the big city is to buy a pass ($1.25 a week) and ride to the end of the lines. It's very entertaining . . . The big attraction on the screen now is "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." This week on the stage Cornelia Otis Skinner is giving a one-woman presentation of "Eda, His Wife.' . . . Dale Carnegie has just finished a series of lectures, and today Sinclair Lewis will make a satirical address on "How to Make Frieds Go Like the Wind." I heard a lady say she didn't think that was very nice of him . . . Lily Pons and Grace Moore have recently been on the program of Sunday afternoon concerts in Constitution Hall. Nelson Eddy will be here in April—and so will the cherry blossoms.

About the most entertaining thing in Washington, however, is a visit to Congress. Funny, though, how long a person can stay here without going. A few weeks ago the filibustering attracted our attention, and my little sister and I walked up the hill of steps and entered the door of the Capitol for the first time. We came into a huge circular room, the ceiling of which was the top of the dome and seemed even higher than that of Union Station. A man asked us if we would like join a party that had just started with the guide—price 25c each. We will see the building some other time; right now we want to see what is going on in it. We want to the north wing first. After wandering down the hall feeling like two babes in the woods, we followed some people up the stair. Finally we saw a sign "Ladies' Gallery" on the door. I started to open the door timidly and an elderly man (the doorkeeper, I suppose) sitting nearby told us to go right in. There were a number of men in the ladies' gallery.

After finding seats, we looked down and knew from the pictures we had seen that we were in the House of Representatives. The most noticeable feature was the lack of Representatives. About 50 of the 435 were present. These were scattered about the room with the majority in the center front. There was one man looking rather lonesome surrounded by a whole section of empty seats. On a back row two men had a newspaper spread wide open reading. Another was sitting by himself chewing gum desperately as if it were his last chance. Some were almost reclining and others got up and walked around and left when they took a notion.

In the front was a high section where Speaker Bankhead was sitting. Directly above, was the part of the gallery reserved for the news reporters who were busy with their pencils. The floor was dotted with a plentiful supply of spittoons. Maybe the Representatives like to chew tobacco, too.

We were too amused by the various actions and positions of the great to listen to the speech. The Speaker soon made us pay attention, however, by rapping loudly with his gavel and asking if the gentleman would yield the floor to another gentleman who stood up to ask a question. The man talked on and finished reading a long sentence and the Speaker rapped several more times before he said, "I yield." From what I could hear, he was speaking on a war tax bill which was referred to a committee.

Another gentleman stood up and asked for a certain number of minutes. I did not understand to whom the floor belonged, but Bankhead asked some "Gentleman" if he would yield to "the Gentleman from Tennessee." No one was ever called anything except "the Gentleman from (his state)." The word "gentleman" seemed to be a little overworked.

The gentleman from Tennessee said that the Old Age Pension Bill which provided that the Federal Government mateh each dollar that the states put up was not fair; the same amount should be given each state. During the course of his speech he had to yield the floor and answer the question of several gentlemen, among them being a stout, sandy-haired gentleman from Mississippi. Presently, the Speaker pounded to tell him the time was up. He had to be yielded two minutes to finish.

Next, the floor was yielded to a gentleman from Oklahoma. He talked so that everyone in the galleries had no trouble hearing. He said we were already spending $500,000,000 for national defense but the President wants a 20% increase. He believed we have enough ships now to defend our boundary and asked just where our boundary extends, anyway. Does it go to within six miles of China? At this there was an uproar or laughter and applause. The few present were enthusiastic.

The Speaker rapped and said the time was up, and a gentleman from Michigan asked for fifteen minutes. The subject changed as often as the speakers. He brought a big map specially prepared to illustrate his speech and told how the Japanese own a small island off the coast of the Philippines and through it have slipped 15,000 of their Nationals into the Islands.

The little pages went in and out taking messages and papers to different ones. A larger boy strutted leisurely in and took the water-glass to refill it. A man stood near each speaker with a shorthand notebook taking down everything that was said.

All the while we were trying to decide which one was Mr. Ford, but we couldn't be sure who anyone was from the back of their heads.

Before we realized it, the minute hand of the big clock above the Speaker had made a complete round. We slipped burriedly out and started toward the Senate laughing.

Dr. T. S. Buie Pleased With Erosion Control

After visiting 12 of the 101 erosion control demonstration project and camp areas in the Southeast during the last three weeks, Dr. T. S. Buie, who is in charge of the work of the Soil Conservation Service in this Region, said at his office in Spartenburg, S. C., this week that he was well pleased with the speed with which farmers in the areas are adopting and demonstrating erosion control practices.

He especially congratulated the farmers for "the fine way in which they had plowed out and maintained terraces on their farms during the fall and winter." "I also noticed a large increase in winter cover crops, especiolly legumes, on almost every farm, and I was more than pleased with the slight evidence of fire in areas where until two or three years ago a large part of the land burned over every year," he explained.

Riverdale H. D. Club Met March 3rd

Both Sides Of The 1938 Cotton Program

BY J. L. COOLEY, County Agent

Grenada Farmers Should Vote For or Against Marketing Quotas March 12th

FACTS OUR FARMERS SHOULD KNOW:

1 THE COTTON SITUATION:—

The 1937-1938 world supply of all cotton was 50,600,000 bales, the largest on record.

The 1937 American crop was 18,700,000 bales, the largest on record.

This year's supply of American cotton is almost 35 percent above normal and has been exceeded only twice in history.

The carry-over of American cotton on next August is expected to be the second largest on record.

A 1938 crop, even 4,000,000 bales less than the 1937 crop, would result in the greatest supply of American cotton on record.

2. HOW MARKETING QUOTAS WOULD OPERATE:—

Each cotton farm will have an acreage allotment (whether marketing quotas are voted in or out).

Marketing quotas in 1938 would neither increase nor decrease the acreage allotment to each farm.

The marketing quotas would be either the actual or normal production on the acreage allotment, which ever is greater.

No matter how high the yield, all cotton produced on the acreage allotment could be sold without any penalty.

Marketing quotas will become effective only if approved by two-thirds of the cotton producers voting on Saturday, March 12th.

COTTON MARKETING QUOTAS, IF IN EFFECT, WILL MEAN:

3 IF YOU PLANT WITHIN YOUR ACREAGE ALLOTMENT:—

You will be eligible to receive conservation payments.

You will be eligible to receive subsidy payments on your 1937 crop.

You will be eligible to receive a loan on all cotton you produce in 1938.

All cooperating farmers will be protected in their effort to adjust supplies and should receive a better price for the cotton produced on the acreage allotment.

4 IF YOU SHOULD OVERPLANT ACREAGE ALLOTMENT:—

You would not receive any 1938 conservation payments.

You would not receive any subsidy payments on your 1937 cotton crop.

You would not be eligible for a loan on the cotton produced on your acreage allotment.

You would have to pay a penalty of $10.00 a bale on cotton marketed in excess of your quota.

Election Commissioners Are Named For Each Precinct In Grenada County

Every effort is being made to announce farm acreage allotments by April 1. Our office forre is working day and night. Every farm in the county will be allotted the same percentage of their tilled crop land to be planted in cotton. All farmers that can cooperate in the 1938 Conservation program should do so as the benefit payments are more than ever. All cooperating farmers should vote for the marketing quotas for protection against a big crop and cheap prices in 1938.

All farmers that do not cooperate should vote as their conscience dictates. They should consider: (1) That in case the marketing quotas are not in effect and most farmers increase their acreage, cheap cotton will result. (2) In case the marketing quotas are in effect and a big crop is made, if the market price of cotton were 6c a pound on cotton produced on their acreage allotments, and the price of cotton produced on any excess acreage will be 6 cents less 2 cents tax or 4 cents a pound.

The following election commissioners have been selected to hold the election Saturday at the following regular voting preceincts:

Tie Plant, W. M. Estes, Ben McElwrath, A. R. Finney; Elliott, R. F. Carpenter, P. L. Bennett, T. T. Hayward; Grenada (Courthouse) R. West, W. V. Dubard, J. H. Watkins; Pleasant Grove, J. G. Shaw, C. Verdict of the People In Election Of 1936

New York, March 9—The verdict of the people in the election of 1936 was the weighty influence that began to manifest itself on Court decisions in the past year is the view expressed by President Roosevelt in his comment on state papers published in Liberty Magazine today. This continues the introduction to the five-volume publication of his state papers.

"The result of the election permitted no doubt whatsoever to remain that, so far as the policies and goal of the New Deal were concerned, the people approve," the article states. "I think that observers of national affairs will agree," he adds, "that this change in the tenor of the Court's decisions, fortunately for democracy, came about largely as a result of the outstanding political event of 1936—the election."

President Roosevelt compares the constant rejection of Congressional enactments by the Court to the days of the South Carolina Nullification Act when that state refused to recognize the National Congress.

The President reviews important legislation which was presented during the tenure of his office and comments on their contents and decisions handed down by the ...n court.

FARMERS PLANTING FOREST TREE SEEDLINGS

State College, Miss. March 9—Planting of forest tree seedlings by Mississippi farmers is moving along rapidly, according to J. B. Toler, forester of the Mississippi Extension Service. Toler stated that during the past two weeks five hundred thousand tree seedlings had been shipped from the nursery to farmers in various sections of the state. He said that the majority of shipments consisted of black locust, loblolly pine and slash pine.

Arrangements have been made, said the extension forester, to supply all demands for forest tree seedlings by the farmers from the nursery, which is located in north Mississippi. Seedlings available to farmers from the nursery are black locust, loblolly pine, slash pine, white and chestnut oak, hickory, ash, catalpa, and cypress. He said that the seedlings were being distributed at a cost of $1.50 per thousand plus express from the nursery.

Orders for trees can be placed through county agricultural agents or sent to the extension forester.

United States Seeks Federal Laboratory For Cotton Research

Of Four Authorized, One For Cotton Belt to Be Primarily Concerned With New Uses and Markets for Cotton.

Unified action to bring to Mississippi one of the million dollar farm products research laboratories authorized under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, characterized a series of events at the beginning of March. One of these chemical laboratories, likely to be devoted principally to cotton, is to be located in the cotton belt.

Section 202 of the new farm law authorizes and directs the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States "to establish, equip and maintain four regional research laboratories . . . to conduct researches into and to develop new scientific, chemical and technical uses and new and extended markets for farm commodities and products and by-products thereof." One million dollars is authorized for each of the four laboratories beginning July 1, 1938 and a like sum annually thereafter.

Following an address by Senator Bilbo, author of Section 202 prodiving these laboratories, the State Legislature moved rapidly. A series of companion bills were introduced in both Senate and House, one of them appropriating not to exceed $500,000 as an evidence of cooperation on the part of the state in event the laboratory is located in Mississippi; another authorizing counties and municipalities to make donations; and still another setting up a State Chemurgic Laboratory Commission consisting of the Governor, the Attorney General, and the Commissioner of Agriculture, to present Mississippi's case before the Federal authorities. The Senate passed these measures, and the appropriation bill was signed by more than a majority of the House members.

An enthusiastic meeting in Jackson of the Mississippi Chemurgic Council, was attended by responsible representatives of a dozen Mississippi towns and cities. The expressed determination was to lay aside inter-city rivalry, secure the laboratory for Mississippi if in any way possible, then to let each interested city present its claim.

"A federal research laboratory to discover new uses and expand market outlets for cotton," stated Commissioner Holton, "has long been sought, and will mean much to the South. We intend to leave no stone unturned in our efforts to secure its location here in the very heart of the cotton belt, where we grow the finest quality of cotton, the greatest variety of cotton, and where leadership in cotton production has long been notable."

W. Y. THRASH, OF LEAKE COUNTY WINS SWEEPSTAKES IN CORN CONTEST

State College, Miss., March 9—W. Y. Thrash, of Walnut Grove, Leake County, produced 199 bushels of corn per acre on two acres to win the state sweepstakes in the Mississippi corn improvement contest, J. W. Willis, extension agronomist, announced recently. Mr. Thrash won $40 in cash prizes and a silver loving cup which will be awarded by the Mississippi Agricultural Association.

A total of $400 was awarded in prizes contributed by the Mississippi Bankers' Association, the Chilean Nitrate Educational Bureau, Inc., the Barrett Company, producers of Arcadian Nitrate of Soda, and P. P. Williams Company, of Vicksburg.

Seven winners were selected in each of the four extension districts of the state. There were 431 contestants, 68 of whom submitted complete records. They produced an average of 74½ bushels of corn per acre.

Dr. Clarence Dorman, Dr. J. F. O'Kelly and Prof. C. R. Owen, all of the Mississippi Experiment Station, judged the contest. The winners were as follows: Northeast Mississippi district, Herman Gray, Tishomingo, first; Wayne W. Lovelace, Tishomingo, second; M. A. McCay, Calhoun, third; Leonard Phillips, Marshall, fourth; William Welch, Tishomingo, fifth; Joseph Sharp, Lee, sixth; Bennie Cunningham, Lee, seventh.

Pecan Scab Cared For By Special Bordeaux Mixture

A special bordeaux spray, containing smaller amounts of hydrated lime than the regular bordeaux formula, is an effective control for pecan scab. This spray material also controls many foliage diseases such as downy spot, vein spot, liver spot, and blotch, reports H. M. McKay, horticulturist of the Mississippi Extension Service.

Until a few years ago, pecan scab was limited to a narrow territory along the Gulf Coast, and only a few varieties were known to be susceptible to the disease. Now, it causes partial to total loss of nuts on many important commercial varieties throughout a large part of the pecan belt.

Three years of testing the special bordeaux formula by specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Albany, Ga., and Shreveport, La., have shown that the fungous diseases may be brought under control without injury to the trees. Many growers attempted to control scab with the regular bordeaux formula containing 3 pounds of copper sulphate, 3 pounds of hydrated lime, and 50 gallons of water. Use of this formula resulted under conditions of dry weather in some cases in complete defoliation of the trees, and naturally, a loss of the nut crop. Too much lime was the cause.

The formula, and the time recommended for spraying, is as follows:

First spray: 2 pounds of copper sulphate 1-2 pound of hydrated lime; 50 gallons of water applied when first leaves are one-half to two-thirds grown. This controls scab, downy spot and vein spots.

Second spray: 3 pounds of copper sulphate, 1 pound of hydrated lime, 50 gallons of water, and 1 pint of light summer oil emulsion applied immediately after pollination, or 2 to 3 weeks after first spray. This controls scab, downy spot, liver spot, and blotch.

A third spray using the same formula as in the second spray, should be applied 3 weeks after the second spray. If it is a rainy season, a fourth spray should follow in another 3 weeks, says McKay.

That the spraying pays is shown by experiments. Dr. H. L. Crane, who has charge of nut investigations for the Department of Agriculture, reports that the income from 14 acres of Schley pecans was $68 an acre greater in 1936 when the trees were sprayed. In 1936 the sprayed trees showed gross income of $54 more per acre. Last year sprayed trees in the same orchard showed a gross of $81.10 an acre more than the unsprayed trees.

County Agent J. L. Cooley has more specific information about preparing and applying the special bordeaux mixture.

Alfalfa Leaf Meal Supplies Vitamin A In Feed For Chicks

To make sure of supplying enough vitamin A for growth in chicks, poultrymen should include 5 percent of alfalfa meal or alfalfa leaf meal in the ration, especially if the ration contains no cod-liver oil, says Miss Eva Leggett, poultry specialist at Mississippi State College.

One-half percent of cod-liver oil in the ration will provide vitamin A enough for young chickens, and recent research shows that when alfalfa meal is fresh and made from well-cured hay of good quality, 2 percent can be used in place of the oil, if other provision is made for supplying the vitamin D

Recent tests at the Southwest Poultry Experiment Station at Glendale, Ariz., showed that meal stored in paper-lined bags—a package now coming into wider use—is partially protected against loss of vitamon A. However, after about 7 months of storage even high-quality meal loses some of its value as a protective and growth-promoting feed. To be safe then, unless a poultryman knows the freshness of his meal, he had better use a double quantity of 5 percent.

Miss Leggett points out that poultry specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture are suggesting that millers mark bags of meal with the date on which the alfalfa was cut. This would reassure poultrymen if the date showed that the product was fresh, and would serve as a warning to use more if the date was more than 7 or 8 months old. Meals also vary in quality and vitamin content according to how well they are cured and handled after curing.

DECIDE whether the acres you plant are going to work for you or whether you are going to work all season on land which will bring you little return. Properly fertilized acres are always on the job. Make sure your cotton fertilizers give the land enough potash to keep the cotton crop growing, free from rust (potash starvation), to satisfactory yields of good quality which will pay you profits. Fertilizers applied at the rate of 400-600 pounds per acre should contain 8% potash to insure young cotton plants receiving enough of this necessary plant food. Later in the growing season, more potash can be added in a nitrogen-potash top-dresser if required. Consult your county agent or experiment station about the fertility of your soil. See your fertilizer dealer about the right amount of potash in your fertilizer. Write us for further information and literature.

COURAGE

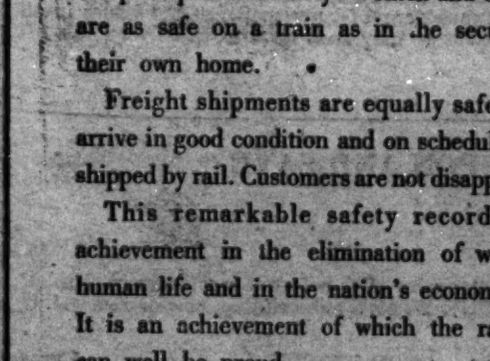
Each day I see her swinging on her crutches;
Step by step she plods her way along.
Sometimes she lags a bit behind the crowd,
But still she trudges blithely on.

Her limbs are withered;
They bear no more her weight,
Yet a smile is always shining on her face.
In her heart there is no malice
At God or destiny or fate.

It matters not the color of her race,—
To me, she spells the soul's eternal victory.

NOTE:—The colored girl described in the above lines, is a victim of Infantile Paralysis. I do not know her name, but as she passes by each day, on her way to school, I take a new grip on life, observing her happy and courageous spirit.

—Mrs. Guidry.



safest place on earth

The safety of the railroads is a phenomenon of the times. The speed of passenger and freight trains has been increased tremendously. Yet the rail safety record has steadily improved.

The increased speed and superb comforts of modern passenger trains can be enjoyed all the more because of the knowledge of complete personal safety. Women and children are as safe on a train as in the security of their own home.

Freight shipments are equally safe. They arrive in good condition and on schedule when shipped by rail. Customers are not disappointed.

This remarkable safety record is an achievement in the elimination of waste in human life and in the nation's economic life. It is an achievement of which the railroads can well be proud.

New Model "T" From Spare Parts

The biggest sensation in Memphis yesterday was A. J. McCaslin and his brand-new Model "T" Ford.

Everywhere he went folks crowded around to gape. "You sho have kept it nice and shiny and new-looking," they said. And that made Mr. McCaslin explode.

"Kept it new-looking! It IS new. Been run only 400 miles."

Old Ford owners squinted at it with puzzled expressions. Looking at it aft they thought it was a 1917 model, but looking at it fo:e they decided they were wrong. It looked more like a 1927.

"It's both," Mr. McCaslin explained, chuckling. "In the back it's a 1917-er, and in the front a 1927."

And here's the story of the queer machine:

From 1912 till 1934 Mr. McCaslin was the Ford dealer in Grenada, Miss. When he sold his dealership, he had several thousand dollars' worth of Model "T" parts on hand. The purchaser wouldn't buy them, and there was nothing for Mr. McCaslin to do but keep them. He just went into the parts business.

Recently he had mechanics assemble a complete Model "T" from his stock of parts, and the car he is now driving is it. It has parts from the line of Fords stretching between 1917 and 1927, "but everything is new from the ground up—tires, motor, upholstery, top—everything."

Mr. McCaslin left Grenada yesterday morning at 4:30. At 7:15 he was in Memphis. The distance is 100 miles.

"And you can take three minutes off the time, because I stopped in Sardis for water and gas. I get 25 miles to the gallon—or better."

That shows you how she runs. He says he has had several opportunities to sell it, but it isn't for sale. He's too tickled with it. He still has enough Model "T" parts to make one or two more cars, and he may do it. The cost of the labor was less than $50.

Mr. McCaslin was born in Grenada County, and has lived in the town of Grenada since 1901, and hasn't been sick a day since he has been there. He is 75.

But getting back to the Model "T," Mr. McCaslin says he may be the only man in the world with a brand-new one, but there are still plenty of them chugging around.

"I sell parts all the time. It's not uncommon to see as many as 30 Model "T's" in town in one day." — Memphis Press-Scimitar, March 4, 1938.
